INTERNATIONAL

Alternative, *n. Stating or offering the one or the other of two things of which either may be taken.
Of two things such that one or the other may be chosen, the choice of either involving the rejection of the other (sometimes of more than two) The other (of two) that may be chosen instead*

Strategy, n. Generalship, or the art of conducting a campaign and manoeuvring an army; any long term plan; artifice or finesse generally

Past Performance

Assumes £10,000 subscribed on the 1st January 2004 with funds immediately re invested on the expiry of each 6 month fixed subscription period

*Indicated return is a target rate of growth, actual returns can vary month to month, consequently they could easily exceed the target, conversely the return could be less than target. Past performance should not necessarily be a guarantee of the future returns.

Whether it is playing the stock market or having a bet on the Grand National we all enjoy the big winners: the share price that triples; the long odds outsider that comes in. But, if we were to analyse these events we would see them for what they really are; the all too seldom highlights paid for by the all too frequent losers.

If we are really serious about making money, we need an alternative strategy that returns a consistently high daily, weekly or monthly return, not occasional windfall. We need a strategy that is tried and tested, with proven high percentage returns at a proportionately lower level of risk.

At Alternative Strategies International we have created such a strategy and an opportunity for experienced investors to profit from the advent of the betting exchanges and the consequent removal of the book makers monopoly in the UK gaming industry. Over the past 4 years we have created a wealth generation computer programme that has consistently returned in excess of 12% growth per annum, it relies upon a methodical analysis of data compiled over many years that we found consistently predicts the most likely outcome of a particular sporting event...

In the following pages I hope you will find the answers to all your questions, more information including detailed past returns can be found at www.alternative-strategies.co.uk If you have any specific queries please contact our administration centre and we will endeavour to answer your questions.
